Great Teacher, Achievement Awards Given

The "father" of SIU baseball, Glenn "Abe" Martin was honored April 30 when the baseball diamond was officially named Abe Martin Field. Two new awards were also instituted in Martin's name. The Alumni Letterman's Award will be annually given to the baseball player personifying Abe's characteristics of honesty, leadership, excellence, dedication and loyalty. The Abe Martin Intramural Athlete-of-the-Year Award was also announced.

Derge Delivers Address

President David Derge has asked for a campus-wide talent pool to study ways to improve the "teaching-learning environment" at SIU. In his first State of the Campus address to faculty and students May 16, Derge called for their participation in several task force groups to examine the teaching mission, which he called "the core of our enterprise."

Reporting on two faculty student groups he had previously appointed, Derge said an upcoming top-level administrative reorganization "will be accomplished with no increased administrative costs" and possibly some reductions. Recommendations of a Management Task Force, he said, should permit sizable cuts in administrative costs and diversion of the money saved into academic development. Another faculty advisory group on tenure, promotion and salary, Derge said, is meeting regularly and is "moving forward in its analysis."

Derge also said SIU's tight budget will call for sacrifices and "will be a joint enterprise calling for common effort and institutional loyalty."

A professor of home economics and four alumni of the University were honored June 10 when the Great Teacher and Alumni Achievement Awards were presented at the annual Alumni Day Banquet.

Anna Carol Fults, professor of home economics, was named SIU at Carbondale Great Teacher of 1972 by the SIU Alumni Association. The title carries with it a $1,000 cash prize.

Miss Fults, a native of Tracy City, Tenn., received her bachelor's degree from the University of Tennessee. She holds a master's degree from Cornell University and doctorate from Ohio State University.

A specialist in home economics education, she joined the SIU staff in 1952 after serving as head of home economics education at Florida State University and head of the home economics department at Arkansas State Teacher's College.

Miss Fults was cited for her "concern for the individual student, communication of subject matter and great patience and leadership in the classroom."

Dan Havens, an associate professor of English, was named 1972 Great Teacher at Edwardsville.

Alumni Achievement Awards were presented to four recipients at the banquet.

Those honored for professional achievement were:

D. Ray Fulkerson '47, professor of operations research and applied mathematics at Cornell University. A former mathematician for the Rand Corporation and visiting professor at many outstanding universities, Dr. Fulkerson is the author of more than 45 books and articles.

Ted B. Tom '40, vice president for research and development at American Oil Company. The author of 12 publications and holder of 20 patents, he has served with the Standard Oil and American Oil Companies since 1943.

Honored for service to SIU and the Association were:

Susie Ogden '30, professor emeritus, SIU School of Business. A teacher in SIU's accounting department for 31 years, Miss Ogden retired in 1962. Through her abiding devotion to the University and her loyalty to the Alumni Association, she continues to be of valuable service to both.

Roger E. Spear '48, district manager for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U.S. A past president of the SIU Alumni Association and the Jackson County alumni club, member of the SIU alumni board of directors for nine years and the legislative council, he has served on and chaired numerous committees of the alumni board. Through the years, he has given his time freely to area club work and other alumni programs.

SIU ALUMNI

Would you like to see Diamond Head?
the Eiffel Tower?
the ruins of Pompeii?
for less than the usual air fare with better than the usual company?

The SIU Alumni Association wants to know where you'd like to go, when you'd like to go and how long you'd like to stay there. We're talking about Alumni Group Tours, open to all members of the SIU Alumni Association and their immediate families.

Nothing definite is planned—yet. We just want to sound you out on what you want so we can schedule tours tailored just for you. There are a couple of things we'd like your feelings on and they are included in the short questionnaire below. We hope you'll fill it out and return it to us soon.

It is impossible to discuss price before we know where we're headed and how many are going. But we do assure you the charges will be in line with other alumni group tours and the cost will be much less than normal travel since we'll be going as a chartered group. Place of departure is another consideration. Most of the tours will originate from a Midwest airport—Chicago or St. Louis. However, if there is great interest from people located elsewhere, we can pick up alums in another geographic location or simply charter another plane at the same reduced costs as the first one. The possibilities are numerous.

We'd like to have your inquiries, thoughts, questions, etc. on this venture. And don't forget to fill out the coupon below too. Please direct both to the SIU Alumni Association, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill. 62901.

SIU Sports

The Southern Illinois University Salukis monopolized Midwestern Conference play for the second year as they ran away with seven of the championships. Carbondale topped the Midwestern schools in tennis, swimming, cross country, indoor and outdoor track, wrestling and gymnastics.

SIU trackmen took the outdoor Central Collegiate Conference championship held in Carbondale. It marks the first time Southern has won the coveted outdoor title of the CCC, a meet that can be dubbed a "mini-NCAA." SIU amassed 167 points to runnerup Tennessee's 98 in a meet that included three conference team champions and six NCAA individual titlists.

The baseball Salukis ended their season in a three-game sweep of Ball State for a 32-8-1 composite record and second place behind Northern Illinois University in the Midwestern Conference. There was no NCAA post-season bid despite an eighth-place national ranking and the Midwest's best overall record. When asked why no bid, Coach Richard "Itch" Jones said, "We didn't win the Midwestern Conference."

The 1972 winner of the Alumni Association's Scholar Athlete Award is Michael Broeking. A mathematics and accounting major with a graduating grade point average of over 4.7, Broeking is from Marion. He was a pitcher for the baseball Salukis.

The Association extends its sincere appreciation for their years of service to the University and its alumni.

Bulletin Reduced to Four Issues

Alumni News bulletin, published by Alumni Services of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, has been cut to four issues annually.

Previously five editions of the publication were sent yearly to all alumni of the University.

The reduction comes as a result of increasing printing and postal costs of an ever-growing mailing list and a reduction of budgeted funds.

Under the new plan, the bulletin will retain its present format and will be published in February, April, June and October.

Alumnus magazine, which is received by all members of the SIU Alumni Association, will continue to be issued bi-monthly. The Edwardsville Alumni News bulletin, which had its first issue in April, is also published on a quarterly basis.
